Cassandra Halls has worked in the Midwest for the past 7 years as a workforce development consultant. During the span of her career she has worked with individuals in career search by helping re-design resumes, polish interview skills and assisting with networking. She also provided project management to several initiatives impacting workforce development including: the Evelyn Davis Center for Working Families, Central Iowa Works and Central Iowa Careers in Financial Services. Halls has experience working in local government, non-profits, recently serving as Vice President for Goodwill of Central Iowa and corporate environments as she has also served as Vice President of Business Development for ATW Training Solutions. This is a tremendous benefit to job seekers and employers as she understands multiple perspectives when it comes to gaining and retaining employment. Halls holds a bachelor's degree in Public Administration from William Penn University.
